

Orlando * Winter Park BRANCHLINE

JANUARY PROGRAM

NANCY MEYER Publisher/CEO ORLANDO SENTINEL

Nancy Meyer began her career with Gannett newspapers in New York in 1987 before devoting nine years to Hearst Newspapers, first as display advertising director at the Times Union in Albany, and then as classified print and online sales director at the San Francisco Chronicle and sfgate.com.

In 2009 Meyer assumed responsibility for an integrated advertising organization that included the newspaper, digital, and broadcast components.

Meyer is responsible for the Orlando Sentinel's portfolio of print and digital products and suite of advertising and marketing solutions. The Orlando Sentinel has a mobile, digital and print audience of more than 1.2 million – reaching consumers in the Orlando market across all screens. Prior to joining the Orlando Sentinel in 2014, Nancy was the Publisher of the Hartford Courant.

Meyer majored in education and communications at Bloomsburg University in Bloomsburg, PA., and at the University of Hartford. She is working toward her master's degree in Interactive Media at Quinnipiac University.

JANUARIUS

January is named after Janus, a two-faced god who could look backward and forward at the same time. It took him twice as long as the other gods to get ready for work in the morning since he had two faces to wash.

Also, he found it uncomfortable to sleep on his back. But there were advantages. For instance, the gods felt more relaxed when he was on sentry duty. In addition to giving his name to January, it was Janus who coined the expression, "I don't know whether I'm coming or going."

From the President's Desk

As we approach the New Year, our numbers continue to grow. Please see Membership VP Judy Alper's report below. Good job, Judy!

And here are seven resolutions for AAUW members for the New Year.

1. Be confident, not sorry.

In your next class or meeting, think twice before you start a sentence with "sorry."

2. Register to vote.

For 2016, resolve to make women's voices heard by registering to vote and turning out to the polls.

3. Negotiate your salary.

Negotiation ensures that women put a fair price on the quality of their work.

4. Love your body.

2016 can be a time to confront the hypersexualization of women in society, combat negative body comments, and discourage perfectionism.

5. Help young women find their voices.

By encouraging young women to seek out opportunities to practice their leadership skills, we can strengthen the leadership pipeline for women.

6. Be an ally.

Do your research, recognize privilege, and listen to others' opinions.

7. Carry the mantle of feminism.

Resolve to get involved and take action.

[From Mission & Action, AAUW's e-newsletter]

And finally, I send best personal New Year's wishes to all of our readership!

Max Reed
President

Blankets! Blankets! Blankets!

Please gather your old (gently used) or new blankets AND coats. They will go to the Health Care Center for the Homeless. Bring them to the next general meeting (Jan. 9). They need to be in good shape, and please, no afghans. Thank you.

Eleanore Cowan

From the VP Membership

It is nice to see how we are growing because our members reach out to their families and friends. We are a unique group of nice folks doing nice things and having good times together. We will start our new year with our old friends as we welcome our new ones.

Please welcome our new members:

Scholarships

PACE Next Step Grant

Just before Thanksgiving, the committee interviewed our first PACE Next Step Grant applicant. What a joy it was to meet Valentina Montoya! She is a lovely young lady who has set high goals for herself. She has just completed her Fall term at Valencia and is enrolled in four classes for the Winter term beginning in January, plus she has a part-time job. She is working on an AA with plans to transfer to UCF to pursue a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology. She stated that she loves helping others and hopes one day to be able to help lots of girls at PACE. The last statements on her application sum up her determination to succeed: "I also don't focus on what I'm up against. I focus on my goals and I try to ignore the rest."

Valentina's mother was with her and we were all touched when listening to her mother's heartfelt thanks to PACE and to AAUW for their support of her daughter.

Valentina certainly impressed us! She has been awarded $500 to help with tuition, books and fees. The committee (Barbara Knapp, Anne Landrum, Rana Tiwari, and Karen Buchan) agreed that through this Grant we are committed to helping her achieve her AA degree.

NOTE:

The AAUW Orlando/Winter Park Branch Scholarship form is on our website and the deadline is March 31. Please share scholarship information with prospective applicants – women only.

Karen Buchan

Your generous gift of Miracle Boxes brought smiles to all the girls at PACE and tears to my eyes. You responded so well this year, many of you donating more than one box, that there were enough for each girl to receive two! What brought tears to my eyes were their responses. As I walked around the tables talking to the young ladies and admiring their boxes, many of them told me how they were going to gift their Mom, their Grandma, their siblings with one of the boxes! I was humbled by their giving attitude even though they often have little, but I was also struck to think how the PACE program was impacting these girls. Thank you all for the lovely boxes and your spirit of giving to others. I hope you all had a wonderful holiday season!

PACE tours will be held every month so if you are interested in seeing the facility please contact me, jbknapps@cfl.rr.com or 407-282-5449.

[Rebecca West, author and journalist]

From our Members

Mele Kalikimaka from Rana Tiwari and Pearl Steel in Hawaii.

Anna Eskamani is a new member of our branch. She was recently featured in the OPINION section of the Orlando Sentinel as one of 100 influential leaders in Central Florida.

Following is the article (especially timely) as it appeared in the Orlando

Sentinel on Wednesday, December 2, 2015.

Anna V. Eskamani, director of public policy and field operations for Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida.

"We have a saying at Planned Parenthood. These doors stay open. Our health centers in Florida were open on the Saturday following the shooting, and we will remain open to ensure that all people have access to care. Our staff is resilient, and patient safety is always our No. 1 priority. The tragedy in Colorado Springs is very personal. One in five American women has been to a Planned Parenthood health center at one point in her life. I am one of those women; and it easily could have been me sitting in the reception room, waiting for my appointment, when gunfire opened. I hope in the weeks ahead that our local Republican electeds and leaders will tone down their rhetoric and visit one of our health centers to learn more, not just about us, but about those whom we serve, too."

Police in Altamonte Springs, Florida, "shut down" a senior citizens' clubhouse for illegal gambling. What were the elderly Jewish residents doing? Playing Mah Jongg. The following is from the Huffington Post.

The standing Thursday afternoon Mah Jongg game at the Escondido Condominium clubhouse came to a screeching halt after a male resident complained that gambling was involved. Zelda King, 87, who organized the weekly game, said the daily "loss limit" is $4.

King's game-mates range in age from 86 to almost 90. She has played for most of the 13 years she's lived in the complex, after moving here from New Jersey.

Turns out there was nothing illegal about any of it. The Heritage Jewish News, which broke the story, reported that Altamonte Springs has no prohibition against Mah Jongg gambling as long as the loss limit does not exceed $10. Playing Mah Jongg is such a deeply rooted tradition among Jews that word of the problem in Florida even reached Israel. King described the resident who ratted them out as a "troublemaker" who has complained about multiple condo issues in the past. But in the spirit of the season, she declined to name him.

[This local story, which went viral, had all the AAUW Mah Jonggers laughing. Now who says Mah Jongg isn't an exciting game? ed.]

Dining In

Dining In met at Barbara Buchele's home on December 4 for an Indonesian-themed dinner. She served the main course of Indonesian Rijsttafel. It was delicious as were the accompanying dishes the other diners brought. Great time was had by all! We will not meet in January but will pick up in February.

Beth McCarty

Did you know . . . ?

Rijsttafels strive to feature an array of not only flavors and colors and degrees of spiciness but also textures including crispy, chewy, slippery, soft, hard, velvety, gelatinous, and runny. It may have as many as 40 side dishes served in small portions. [ed.]

Walking Group

The Never Pedestrian Walking Group starts the New Year with a stroll in College Park on Thursday, January 14.

The group will walk around a portion of Lake Ivanhoe, visit Villa ConRoy, home of one of Orlando's most active arts patrons, and lunch at Dubsdread. Of course, stories unfold at each location. Did you know College Park was originally two diverse communities with two separate train stations for two separate rail lines? And one was a thriving Jewish community of dairy farmers!

Walking group members should respond by January 7 to attend the College Park walk.

If you are interested in joining the walkers on the second Thursday of each month and would like to receive our walk details, contact

Dining Couples

When we lived in New Jersey, my husband used to call a similar group "dining strangers." In December, twelve couples met in three different homes and all reported delicious food and delightful conversation even though many of them did not know each other and met for the first time that night.

If you and your partner are willing to host a dinner in your home, think about signing up. The tentative dates for the next three dinners are:

Saturday, Feb. 20, 2016

Saturday, April 16, 2016

Saturday, June 18, 2016

Substitutes may also be needed during the year and will be expected to bring part of the meal, but do not have to host. If you are interested, contact

Booklovers

Book discussions will be varied but dynamic in January. Below are the three books that Booklovers are reading.

Rebecca is the book most of us will read for January.

This classic, written by (Dame) Daphne du Maurier in 1938 takes us back to England to meet the second Mrs. Maxim de Winter.

"Last night I dreamt I went to Manderley again . . ." With these words, the reader is ushered into an isolated gray stone mansion on the windswept Cornish coast, as the second Mrs. Maxim de Winter recalls the chilling events that transpired as she began her new life as the young bride of a husband she barely knew.

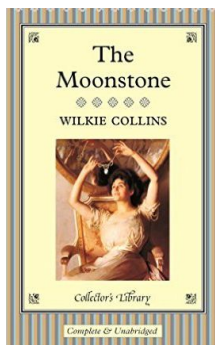

For in every corner of every room were phantoms of a time dead, but not forgotten—a past devotedly preserved by the sinister housekeeper, Mrs. Danvers: a suite immaculate and untouched, clothing laid out and ready to be worn, but not by any of the great house's current occupants. With an eerie presentiment of evil tightening her heart, the second Mrs. De Winter walked in the shadow of her mysterious predecessor, determined to uncover the darkest secrets and shattering truths about Maxim's first wife—the late and hauntingly beautiful Rebecca.

Booklovers VI

The Moonstone by Wilkie Collins

A debased Englishman steals the moonstone (opal), a sacred gem from India. It brings bad luck to each of its English possessors. When the gem disappears from a young woman's room and three sinister Hindus menace her family, the methodical Sergeant Cuff is assigned to the case. This 1868 mystery is "The first and the best of modern English detective novels." [T.S. Eliot] Several features of the book became required conventions of all detective stories that followed it.

Booklovers VII

Connected: The Surprising Power of Our Social Networks and How They Shape Our Lives

by Nicholas Christakis and James H. Fowler.

"Happiness is contagious...Your friends and your friends' friends can make you fat—or thin." These are among the startling findings disclosed in Connected. The Internationally renowned scientists Nicholas A. Christakis and James H. Fowler reveal how our real-life social networks drive and shape virtually every aspect of our lives.

How we feel, whether we fall ill, how much money we make, and whether we vote on Election Day all depend on what others around us—even those who are only distantly connected to us—are doing, thinking, and feeling. Our social networks underlie financial scams, eating disorders, substance abuse, and suicide clusters, but also innovation, altruism, and "random acts of kindness."

This fascinating and provocative book offers a revolutionary new paradigm—that, like school of fish changing direction in unison, we are unconsciously led by the people around us. Connected will forever change the way we look at one another—and ourselves.
